is the third book in the #LifeIsYoursTrilogy - a series of books that tells the story of how one woman unwittingly turns the grief and torment of heartbreak into the most magical year of her life.

TIME FOR MENDING HER HAPPY ENDING

New Year's Eve is in full swing. Jess and Lindy have met by chance and already they're sharing a bottle of wine in a cosy Turkish restaurant. Lindy is hooked on a story Jess is telling, but midnight is coming and happy endings aren't always guaranteed . . .

After Jess returns from the trip of a lifetime high on hope, ambition and new love, she's ready to take on the world. She shuts down her business, cuts ties with her ex and announces to everyone the old her is gone.

But a violent encounter rocks her world and her past comes crashing back to haunt her. With a childhood demon to forgive, a long-distance relationship to navigate and that final layer of self-love to uncover, can Jess dig deep and put the final pieces in place before midnight comes knocking?

EXCERPTS FROM THE BOOK

FROM THE PROLOGUE

I hate to say it but I have become one of those people. I love the way the mist falls onto my cheeks as I step off the aeroplane. The threat of ice in the air is refreshing and, if anything, has woken up every single cell of my body to the wonder of being back. It's like I've touched down in an entirely different world. And I guess I have.

FROM CH 32 - THE OUTSIDE WORLD

The infinite, salted dewdrops clung to his hair so that it shone straight and flat with tar-black beauty. His large, brown eyes watched me silently and wetness settled on his nose, his chin, his lips like tiny pearls. I wished for a lengthy second that I wasn't wearing my winter clothes so that I could know what it would feel like to crush my soft, white body against his mouth right here, right now, in the curling, pearlescent mist.

FROM CH 11 - THE VISITOR

I got the feeling that neither of us wanted to say goodnight, worried that the charm of the evening would be shattered upon that very word. So instead I melted into his broad chest and allowed his arm to curl around my waist, his fingertips idly brushing the bare skin on my hip. I could feel his breath on top of my head and knew, without a doubt, that if I lifted my head that would be all he needed to kiss me.

FROM CH 15 - CHOICES QUEEN

Gillie and Ella could never understand why I wanted to spend time here. "Once you've seen a colossal rusty bloke with a pert bum and an aeronautical mutation, you don't need to see it again." Ella had quipped as we'd swung off the motorway. But she smiled anyway, in a way that told me Gormley's Angel of the North was finally winning her over.

LIFE IS YOURS Book #1

From heartbreak to heart awake

Who can say what has brought Jess and Lindy together? maybe it's the beach, the stars and the warm Turkish night air. But they may as well get settled for the night because Jess has a story to tell and Lindy is ready to listen . . .

Jess had life sorted. A gang of great mates, an adoring fiancé and a thriving business – she couldn't have asked for more. But the proverbial rug is whipped out from under her feet when the fiancé makes a sharp exit on New Year's Eve. Therein follows the Week From Hell, eternally streaked mascara and Chardonnay-a-plenty.

But this is the story of a woman on a path. Sure, there are a number of trips and falls along the way but Jess is on a journey that will change her life. On a boring business course, she remembers what she really wants. Strange new friendships are made, new ideas grow; and a last-minute discount holiday to Turkey helps her heart wake up to a whole new rhythm. A rhythm that is just beginning to get going . . .

DESTINY IS YOURS Book #2

Far from home the soul can roam

There's something about New Year's Eve that brings people together. That's how Jess meets Lindy on a moonlit Turkish beach with midnight fast approaching. She pours out her story of heartbreak . . . but it soon twists into something with a little more soul and a lot more adventure.

Jess's heart is newly mended. Cracks still healing from an epic break-up, as well as a failing business, she's booked the trip of a lifetime to Turkey with best mate Gillie. Jess has had it with streaked mascara and sobbing for England – she wants to kick-start a better life for herself and maybe even find a little bit of magic.

Surely travelling round Turkey will do the trick? Jess expects the delicious cocktails, the charming waiters and the golden beaches, but she perhaps isn't prepared for a mysterious pack of challenges sent by a friend; a book that transforms the way she sees the world; starlit nights that take over the days and an impromptu fortune-telling moment that changes everything . . .
